12	v. v.
13	GOOGLE INC.,	FINAL JURY SELECTION PLAN
14	Defendant.
15
16	Most (but not all) of counsel's proposals have been adopted in this revision, as follows:
17	1. Venire will be sworn and roll taken	in the courtroom.
18	2. Case will be called and counsel wil	l make appearances and introduce their tables
19	5. Judge will welcome venire, give pro	eliminary instructions, and excuse the sick.
20	4. Judge will read aloud all agreed-oil	statement of the case.
21	5. We will pass out a two-page question	onnaire (appended hereto) and allow fifteen
22	minutes to complete. The venire will hold onto their completed questionnaires.
23	6. Names will be called by clerk to file	l in the jury box (plus two seats), a total of
24	sixteen. As they are called forward, the venirepersons will show their questionnaire to the
25) indee and if they have answered "yes" as to strong	judge, and if they have answered "yes" as to strong opinions on questions Q(d) or Q(e), then the judge, and if they have answered "yes" as to strong opinions on questions 9(d) or 9(e), then they will be diverted to the end of the venire list (in same sequence as called) to be available later as potential jurors but will not, at least yet, be seated in the jury box.

7.	Once sixteen are seated in the jury box, their sixteen questionnaires will be copied and giv	ven to counsel.

- 8. The sixteen will be questioned. Hardship issues will be first considered. The judge will conduct the initial voir dire but counsel shall each have forty minutes to examine, subject to enlargement for good cause.
- 9. As prospective jurors are excused for cause or hardship, the same diversion criteria as above will be used to pass those with strong opinions to the end of the list. Those seated will have their questionnaires handed to counsel.
- 10. When all sixteen are passed for cause (or all challenges for cause overruled), counsel shall exercise their peremptory challenges.
 - 11. The remaining ten will be sworn and the rest of the venire excused.

The main point of this diversion procedure (in Paragraphs 6 and 9 above) is to save time by avoiding the repeated and likely futile exercise of one side or the other trying to rehabilitate "biased" venirepersons, at least until we run out of presumptively "unbiased" candidates. The judge expects to summon a large enough venire to avoid the need to examine any "biased" venireperson but we cannot be sure of the right number in advance. Neither side will know which way they are biased, only that they are biased. Remember to send up soon a joint onepage list of the names of all potential witnesses.

We will need almost all the gallery for the venire, so both sides shall please concentrate their troops on the front row on the judge's right (for now, until selection is done).
